Cover Image:

My Patriot Guard Riders District Captain has a daughter who wants to be a model. Her telephone broke about the same time I thought it might be nice to try a session. I offered to give the girl my old 3G HTC Smartphone as payment for modeling. So, on a brisk January day, we all (photographer, model, and model's mother) trooped out to the abandoned barracks at the former Dept. of Corrections Honor Farm at Tulaco to use the stairs of a demolished building as background. The girl did up her hair to try and look younger than her 13 years. I shot in color, using both sheet film and digital. This shot is a digital capture converted to Black and White.

The girl is now a year older, and has gone to black hair and lip piercings. I may try to work with her again provided I can develop a theme acceptable to all concerned. I think the black hair will be fun to work with. I am not so sure about the bling in her lip.
