December Challenge - Water Catch That Small Drop

Cover Image Reflection in the Rain

By Tracy Carson

This image was taken on a rainy night in November. I like shooting downtown at this time of year because it gets dark so early and I can get home at a reasonable time of night. I am always looking for reflection shots and this is a little more abstract because of how hard it was raining. It doesn't bother me to shoot in the rain, that's what rain bags are for and there are some great images out there to be captured on these wet, winter nights if you just go out and look for them. My settings were ISO 400, F11, 24 - 105 lens at 45mm, 10 seconds. I'm always looking for someone to go shoot with at night, so if you ever want to go out on a weekend night, rain or not - let me know!
