Title: Mossy Forest Stream

By: Sherrie Tallman

I was attending a photography workshop in the Olympics in June of 2017. This stream, with a picturesque wooden bridge crossing it, is on the hike to Sol Duc Falls, approximately 1/2 mile from the parking lot. We stopped at this stream on the way back out from Sol Duc Falls and the class members positioned themselves along the banks. I took a number of images around the stream, as the instructor had me working on using Kelvin temperatures rather than my camera's cloudy or shady settings. I usually take a range from K5000 to K6000, at f/20 and f/22 - usually with -1/3 or -2/3 exposure compensation. However, I often needed to lower the exposure compensation to -1 or -1 1/3 while in the woods to get the right color saturation. I shoot at ISO 100 and use the Aperture Priority setting. I also have a specific landscape "roll of film" that I use.

Coincidentally, I returned to that area 3 1/2 weeks later to a greatly reduced water flow. Many cascading streams were completely dried up, including one I forced myself not to stop and photograph on June 18, as I was on a time deadline. I was so disappointed to find that it had dried up!

NWCCC ANNOUNCES FALL COMPETITIONS

by Frank Townsend

The Northwest Council of Camera Clubs is comprised of 18 clubs in the Northwest corner of the state, the Pilchuck Camera Club is among the eighteen. Each year the Council sponsors four photography competitions, including the Traveling Print Salon a club competition where each club is competing against other clubs within the council on a round robin type manner. Pilchuck's prints are sent to other clubs for judging while other clubs' images come to Pilchuck for judging. Top scores from each club are sent to the Council for independent judging. This year's prints recently completed "making the rounds" but next year's competition begins in November.

In addition to the Traveling Prints there are three individual competitions, these are submitted as individuals who belong to clubs within the Council. As the Pilchuck Camera Club is a member club you are encouraged to participate in these competitions, all of which close on October 1. The first is the Open Print Salon where you may enter up to 3 color and 3 monochrome either in the large print category or the small print category. Another interesting competition is the Open Digital Competition where you may enter up to 4 images, either color, monochrome or creative. And finally there is the Digital Slide Show Competition (formerly known as the Rix Showcase). There are two categories in this completion, either Photo Essay or Travel Essay but these are done as slide shows rather than individual prints.

This article only lightly touches on the competitions, for rules and entry forms visit the Council's website at nwcameraclubs.org and click on "Competitions" at the top of the page. Members of the Council will be happy to help you in any way, please don't hesitate to ask.
