Steve took this image at the Nooksack River. Eagles generally start showing early December and last through the month and into January depending on water flows and fish availability. They are there to feed on the end of the salmon run. Seems the best time is early to late morning, we left at 7AM and were shooting by 9AM and left at noon. On a weekday you can expect 10 to 20 other photographers and on a weekend, a lot more. There are at least 2 places with easy access (see map).

Steve's setup for the image was: Canon 80D, Sigma 15-600mm @ 451mm, f/8, 1/5000 second, purposely underexposed by 1 1/3 stops, spot metered
